

THE NEW LEADERS

Tammany Hall's Generals in the New Districts.

Mr. Croker's Selections Are All Bright Young Politicians.

Portraits and Sketches of the Men Who Have Just Been Promoted.

Eight new faces are now to be seen daily at the city hall and in the city departments. They are the faces of the energetic young politicians just appointed the Tammany district leaders of the new districts formed under the reapportionment made by the board of aldermen July 19.

William B. Stillings, leader of the new Twenty-eighth District, is a business man and wealthy. He is proprietor of a business yard at Sixty-third street and Avenue A. He is said to be worth $500,000. He is a good organizer and has been a large contributor to campaign funds.

Leader John L. Sexton, of the Twenty-third District, is well known to the public through the sheriff's office. He is a business man and wealthy. He is proprietor of a business yard at Sixty-third street and Avenue A. He is said to be worth $500,000. He is a good organizer and has been a large contributor to campaign funds.

Their position at the departments is to look after the interests of their constituents who want appointments or have other business in the public service. The new leaders are around early and often, and are giving the older hands at the game of politics a close race for the desirable places.

Thomas A. DeWitt, leader of the new Twenty-ninth District, is a business man and wealthy. He is proprietor of a business yard at Sixty-third street and Avenue A. He is said to be worth $500,000. He is a good organizer and has been a large contributor to campaign funds.

Water Purveyor Burke is known as a hustler in politics. His promotion is the result of active and successful work. Jacob Seabold, of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, has been known as Fire Commissioner Purroy's able assistant in politics.

The position of a district leader is an onerous and responsible one. It takes a man of tact and ability to gain and maintain power and influence and a following and to conciliate all the conflicting interests of the party in a district. A place must be provided for this one and that one; when a constituent is unfortunate enough to be arrested his case must be looked after by his leader.

John N. Sexton, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

When it is considered that a district leader is the practical ruler or is responsible for an army of police or more, he must be regarded as a man of importance.

John N. Sexton, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

When it is considered that a district leader is the practical ruler or is responsible for an army of police or more, he must be regarded as a man of importance.

John N. Sexton, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

When it is considered that a district leader is the practical ruler or is responsible for an army of police or more, he must be regarded as a man of importance.

John N. Sexton, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

When it is considered that a district leader is the practical ruler or is responsible for an army of police or more, he must be regarded as a man of importance.

John N. Sexton, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

When it is considered that a district leader is the practical ruler or is responsible for an army of police or more, he must be regarded as a man of importance.

John N. Sexton, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

When it is considered that a district leader is the practical ruler or is responsible for an army of police or more, he must be regarded as a man of importance.

John N. Sexton, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

When it is considered that a district leader is the practical ruler or is responsible for an army of police or more, he must be regarded as a man of importance.

John N. Sexton, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

When it is considered that a district leader is the practical ruler or is responsible for an army of police or more, he must be regarded as a man of importance.

John N. Sexton, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

When it is considered that a district leader is the practical ruler or is responsible for an army of police or more, he must be regarded as a man of importance.

THOUGHT FOLEY WAS SHOT.

So a Priest Gave Him Extreme Unction on the Sidewalk.

The Man Was Unhurt, Except by Being Thrown Out of a Saloon.

The spectacle of a priest administering extreme unction to a supposed dying man on the sidewalk at 1 o'clock A. M., by the light of two burning candles, started Dr. Cox, of Bellevue Hospital, this morning.

The doctor had been called by the ambulance to West Thirty-first street. In front of No. 422 was a man supposed to be dying. His head was burning two candles, and a priest, one of Father Gleason's assistants, who had been hurriedly called, was bending over the injured man.

The doctor interrupted the priest, made a hasty examination of the man, and then exclaimed: "Why, this man's all right. He's drunk, that's all. Get up there, you!" and he touched the man on the sidewalk with his toe.

Just then Policeman Kelle, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, came up and asked: "Is he dead?"

Then the officer explained to the doctor that he had heard three shots fired, and when he ran up found this man on the sidewalk. The man said his name was Thomas Foley and that Michael T. McCormack, in front of whose saloon he was lying, had shot him three times. The policeman had arrested McCormack and taken him to the station-house, and was awaiting an ambulance. Foley had returned to take charge of the supposed dying man.

In the mean time a bystander had gone to Father Gleason's house around the corner and left word that a man was dying on the sidewalk in West Thirty-first street. The priest and the candles on the spot resulted.

When it was found that Foley had not been shot he was also arrested.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning each man told his story. Foley lived next door to McCormack's saloon. He said he was out with friends drinking Sunday night, and said that McCormack put him out of his saloon at 12:30 o'clock. Foley declared that he remembered nothing else of the affair, except that McCormack fired three shots at him. He said down, he says, thinking he was shot.

McCormack admitted that he put Foley and tried to throw him out of his saloon, and that he came back again, and when he opened the door to send them away they dragged him out and pounded him.

Foley persisted in stating that the shots had been fired directly at him. The revolver, which was taken from McCormack, was a six-shooter, of 34-calibre, and there were three empty shells in the cylinder. Both men were taken to the station-house, and McCormack was held in $1,000 bonds for a preliminary hearing. Foley was committed to the House of Detention for a preliminary hearing.

The following games are scheduled for today: At New York, Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, Louisville at Boston, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, Chicago at Baltimore.

ART MUSEUM TO BE FREE.

Park Board Arranges to Do Away with All Admission Fees.

The Park Board today took the necessary action to carry out the provisions of the new law authorizing the board to provide for the opening of the American Museum of Art free of charge to the public every day in the week except Monday, when it will be closed for cleaning the premises.

Hitherto an admission fee has been charged two days in the week. The board of estimate and apportionment has been asked to appropriate $50,000 for the maintenance of the museum, and the board has agreed to do so on the allowance is made the museum will be free at all times hereafter.

Lawyer John M. Rogers notified the board that he had been retained by several property-owners on Eighty-seventh street to oppose the opening of the museum on that street between Eighth and Columbus avenues as proposed by the Transvaal Land Company.

The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. The deck in the steerage had to be torn up to reach the flames. The berth deck in the steerage was nearly destroyed, as were also the officers' bunks and part of the fittings.

The damage will not necessitate the ship's return to New York.

THIS RAID SUCCEEDED.

Inmates of a Disorderly House Were Hidden Behind False Doors.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning Mame, Theo Andrea and a man arrested with her, who she said was her husband, were held in jail for examination on the charge of keeping a disorderly house at 40 West Fourth street.

This house had been several times unsuccessfully raided by Capt. McLaughlin's officers, who never could find the inmates, the latter vanishing as soon as the officers got inside the house.

A raid was made at 1 o'clock last night, and the inmates again disappeared, but the detectives found closets with false doors, in which several women were concealed. They were taken from the closets by the officers on the stairs with him.

John J. Ryan, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

THOUGHT FOLEY WAS SHOT.

So a Priest Gave Him Extreme Unction on the Sidewalk.

The Man Was Unhurt, Except by Being Thrown Out of a Saloon.

The spectacle of a priest administering extreme unction to a supposed dying man on the sidewalk at 1 o'clock A. M., by the light of two burning candles, started Dr. Cox, of Bellevue Hospital, this morning.

The doctor had been called by the ambulance to West Thirty-first street. In front of No. 422 was a man supposed to be dying. His head was burning two candles, and a priest, one of Father Gleason's assistants, who had been hurriedly called, was bending over the injured man.

The doctor interrupted the priest, made a hasty examination of the man, and then exclaimed: "Why, this man's all right. He's drunk, that's all. Get up there, you!" and he touched the man on the sidewalk with his toe.

Just then Policeman Kelle, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, came up and asked: "Is he dead?"

Then the officer explained to the doctor that he had heard three shots fired, and when he ran up found this man on the sidewalk. The man said his name was Thomas Foley and that Michael T. McCormack, in front of whose saloon he was lying, had shot him three times. The policeman had arrested McCormack and taken him to the station-house, and was awaiting an ambulance. Foley had returned to take charge of the supposed dying man.

In the mean time a bystander had gone to Father Gleason's house around the corner and left word that a man was dying on the sidewalk in West Thirty-first street. The priest and the candles on the spot resulted.

When it was found that Foley had not been shot he was also arrested.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning each man told his story. Foley lived next door to McCormack's saloon. He said he was out with friends drinking Sunday night, and said that McCormack put him out of his saloon at 12:30 o'clock. Foley declared that he remembered nothing else of the affair, except that McCormack fired three shots at him. He said down, he says, thinking he was shot.

McCormack admitted that he put Foley and tried to throw him out of his saloon, and that he came back again, and when he opened the door to send them away they dragged him out and pounded him.

Foley persisted in stating that the shots had been fired directly at him. The revolver, which was taken from McCormack, was a six-shooter, of 34-calibre, and there were three empty shells in the cylinder. Both men were taken to the station-house, and McCormack was held in $1,000 bonds for a preliminary hearing. Foley was committed to the House of Detention for a preliminary hearing.

The following games are scheduled for today: At New York, Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, Louisville at Boston, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, Chicago at Baltimore.

ART MUSEUM TO BE FREE.

Park Board Arranges to Do Away with All Admission Fees.

The Park Board today took the necessary action to carry out the provisions of the new law authorizing the board to provide for the opening of the American Museum of Art free of charge to the public every day in the week except Monday, when it will be closed for cleaning the premises.

Hitherto an admission fee has been charged two days in the week. The board of estimate and apportionment has been asked to appropriate $50,000 for the maintenance of the museum, and the board has agreed to do so on the allowance is made the museum will be free at all times hereafter.

Lawyer John M. Rogers notified the board that he had been retained by several property-owners on Eighty-seventh street to oppose the opening of the museum on that street between Eighth and Columbus avenues as proposed by the Transvaal Land Company.

The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. The deck in the steerage had to be torn up to reach the flames. The berth deck in the steerage was nearly destroyed, as were also the officers' bunks and part of the fittings.

The damage will not necessitate the ship's return to New York.

THIS RAID SUCCEEDED.

Inmates of a Disorderly House Were Hidden Behind False Doors.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning Mame, Theo Andrea and a man arrested with her, who she said was her husband, were held in jail for examination on the charge of keeping a disorderly house at 40 West Fourth street.

This house had been several times unsuccessfully raided by Capt. McLaughlin's officers, who never could find the inmates, the latter vanishing as soon as the officers got inside the house.

A raid was made at 1 o'clock last night, and the inmates again disappeared, but the detectives found closets with false doors, in which several women were concealed. They were taken from the closets by the officers on the stairs with him.

John J. Ryan, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

THOUGHT FOLEY WAS SHOT.

So a Priest Gave Him Extreme Unction on the Sidewalk.

The Man Was Unhurt, Except by Being Thrown Out of a Saloon.

The spectacle of a priest administering extreme unction to a supposed dying man on the sidewalk at 1 o'clock A. M., by the light of two burning candles, started Dr. Cox, of Bellevue Hospital, this morning.

The doctor had been called by the ambulance to West Thirty-first street. In front of No. 422 was a man supposed to be dying. His head was burning two candles, and a priest, one of Father Gleason's assistants, who had been hurriedly called, was bending over the injured man.

The doctor interrupted the priest, made a hasty examination of the man, and then exclaimed: "Why, this man's all right. He's drunk, that's all. Get up there, you!" and he touched the man on the sidewalk with his toe.

Just then Policeman Kelle, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, came up and asked: "Is he dead?"

Then the officer explained to the doctor that he had heard three shots fired, and when he ran up found this man on the sidewalk. The man said his name was Thomas Foley and that Michael T. McCormack, in front of whose saloon he was lying, had shot him three times. The policeman had arrested McCormack and taken him to the station-house, and was awaiting an ambulance. Foley had returned to take charge of the supposed dying man.

In the mean time a bystander had gone to Father Gleason's house around the corner and left word that a man was dying on the sidewalk in West Thirty-first street. The priest and the candles on the spot resulted.

When it was found that Foley had not been shot he was also arrested.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning each man told his story. Foley lived next door to McCormack's saloon. He said he was out with friends drinking Sunday night, and said that McCormack put him out of his saloon at 12:30 o'clock. Foley declared that he remembered nothing else of the affair, except that McCormack fired three shots at him. He said down, he says, thinking he was shot.

McCormack admitted that he put Foley and tried to throw him out of his saloon, and that he came back again, and when he opened the door to send them away they dragged him out and pounded him.

Foley persisted in stating that the shots had been fired directly at him. The revolver, which was taken from McCormack, was a six-shooter, of 34-calibre, and there were three empty shells in the cylinder. Both men were taken to the station-house, and McCormack was held in $1,000 bonds for a preliminary hearing. Foley was committed to the House of Detention for a preliminary hearing.

The following games are scheduled for today: At New York, Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, Louisville at Boston, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, Chicago at Baltimore.

ART MUSEUM TO BE FREE.

Park Board Arranges to Do Away with All Admission Fees.

The Park Board today took the necessary action to carry out the provisions of the new law authorizing the board to provide for the opening of the American Museum of Art free of charge to the public every day in the week except Monday, when it will be closed for cleaning the premises.

Hitherto an admission fee has been charged two days in the week. The board of estimate and apportionment has been asked to appropriate $50,000 for the maintenance of the museum, and the board has agreed to do so on the allowance is made the museum will be free at all times hereafter.

Lawyer John M. Rogers notified the board that he had been retained by several property-owners on Eighty-seventh street to oppose the opening of the museum on that street between Eighth and Columbus avenues as proposed by the Transvaal Land Company.

The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. The deck in the steerage had to be torn up to reach the flames. The berth deck in the steerage was nearly destroyed, as were also the officers' bunks and part of the fittings.

The damage will not necessitate the ship's return to New York.

THIS RAID SUCCEEDED.

Inmates of a Disorderly House Were Hidden Behind False Doors.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning Mame, Theo Andrea and a man arrested with her, who she said was her husband, were held in jail for examination on the charge of keeping a disorderly house at 40 West Fourth street.

This house had been several times unsuccessfully raided by Capt. McLaughlin's officers, who never could find the inmates, the latter vanishing as soon as the officers got inside the house.

A raid was made at 1 o'clock last night, and the inmates again disappeared, but the detectives found closets with false doors, in which several women were concealed. They were taken from the closets by the officers on the stairs with him.

John J. Ryan, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

THOUGHT FOLEY WAS SHOT.

So a Priest Gave Him Extreme Unction on the Sidewalk.

The Man Was Unhurt, Except by Being Thrown Out of a Saloon.

The spectacle of a priest administering extreme unction to a supposed dying man on the sidewalk at 1 o'clock A. M., by the light of two burning candles, started Dr. Cox, of Bellevue Hospital, this morning.

The doctor had been called by the ambulance to West Thirty-first street. In front of No. 422 was a man supposed to be dying. His head was burning two candles, and a priest, one of Father Gleason's assistants, who had been hurriedly called, was bending over the injured man.

The doctor interrupted the priest, made a hasty examination of the man, and then exclaimed: "Why, this man's all right. He's drunk, that's all. Get up there, you!" and he touched the man on the sidewalk with his toe.

Just then Policeman Kelle, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, came up and asked: "Is he dead?"

Then the officer explained to the doctor that he had heard three shots fired, and when he ran up found this man on the sidewalk. The man said his name was Thomas Foley and that Michael T. McCormack, in front of whose saloon he was lying, had shot him three times. The policeman had arrested McCormack and taken him to the station-house, and was awaiting an ambulance. Foley had returned to take charge of the supposed dying man.

In the mean time a bystander had gone to Father Gleason's house around the corner and left word that a man was dying on the sidewalk in West Thirty-first street. The priest and the candles on the spot resulted.

When it was found that Foley had not been shot he was also arrested.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning each man told his story. Foley lived next door to McCormack's saloon. He said he was out with friends drinking Sunday night, and said that McCormack put him out of his saloon at 12:30 o'clock. Foley declared that he remembered nothing else of the affair, except that McCormack fired three shots at him. He said down, he says, thinking he was shot.

McCormack admitted that he put Foley and tried to throw him out of his saloon, and that he came back again, and when he opened the door to send them away they dragged him out and pounded him.

Foley persisted in stating that the shots had been fired directly at him. The revolver, which was taken from McCormack, was a six-shooter, of 34-calibre, and there were three empty shells in the cylinder. Both men were taken to the station-house, and McCormack was held in $1,000 bonds for a preliminary hearing. Foley was committed to the House of Detention for a preliminary hearing.

The following games are scheduled for today: At New York, Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, Louisville at Boston, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, Chicago at Baltimore.

ART MUSEUM TO BE FREE.

Park Board Arranges to Do Away with All Admission Fees.

The Park Board today took the necessary action to carry out the provisions of the new law authorizing the board to provide for the opening of the American Museum of Art free of charge to the public every day in the week except Monday, when it will be closed for cleaning the premises.

Hitherto an admission fee has been charged two days in the week. The board of estimate and apportionment has been asked to appropriate $50,000 for the maintenance of the museum, and the board has agreed to do so on the allowance is made the museum will be free at all times hereafter.

Lawyer John M. Rogers notified the board that he had been retained by several property-owners on Eighty-seventh street to oppose the opening of the museum on that street between Eighth and Columbus avenues as proposed by the Transvaal Land Company.

The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. The deck in the steerage had to be torn up to reach the flames. The berth deck in the steerage was nearly destroyed, as were also the officers' bunks and part of the fittings.

The damage will not necessitate the ship's return to New York.

THIS RAID SUCCEEDED.

Inmates of a Disorderly House Were Hidden Behind False Doors.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning Mame, Theo Andrea and a man arrested with her, who she said was her husband, were held in jail for examination on the charge of keeping a disorderly house at 40 West Fourth street.

This house had been several times unsuccessfully raided by Capt. McLaughlin's officers, who never could find the inmates, the latter vanishing as soon as the officers got inside the house.

A raid was made at 1 o'clock last night, and the inmates again disappeared, but the detectives found closets with false doors, in which several women were concealed. They were taken from the closets by the officers on the stairs with him.

John J. Ryan, leader, and in a thousand and one ways the leader must make friends and know how to keep them. So that on election day he can get his party's vote in the box and carry his district.

THOUGHT FOLEY WAS SHOT.

So a Priest Gave Him Extreme Unction on the Sidewalk.

The Man Was Unhurt, Except by Being Thrown Out of a Saloon.

The spectacle of a priest administering extreme unction to a supposed dying man on the sidewalk at 1 o'clock A. M., by the light of two burning candles, started Dr. Cox, of Bellevue Hospital, this morning.

The doctor had been called by the ambulance to West Thirty-first street. In front of No. 422 was a man supposed to be dying. His head was burning two candles, and a priest, one of Father Gleason's assistants, who had been hurriedly called, was bending over the injured man.

The doctor interrupted the priest, made a hasty examination of the man, and then exclaimed: "Why, this man's all right. He's drunk, that's all. Get up there, you!" and he touched the man on the sidewalk with his toe.

Just then Policeman Kelle, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, came up and asked: "Is he dead?"

Then the officer explained to the doctor that he had heard three shots fired, and when he ran up found this man on the sidewalk. The man said his name was Thomas Foley and that Michael T. McCormack, in front of whose saloon he was lying, had shot him three times. The policeman had arrested McCormack and taken him to the station-house, and was awaiting an ambulance. Foley had returned to take charge of the supposed dying man.

In the mean time a bystander had gone to Father Gleason's house around the corner and left word that a man was dying on the sidewalk in West Thirty-first street. The priest and the candles on the spot resulted.

When it was found that Foley had not been shot he was also arrested.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning each man told his story. Foley lived next door to McCormack's saloon. He said he was out with friends drinking Sunday night, and said that McCormack put him out of his saloon at 12:30 o'clock. Foley declared that he remembered nothing else of the affair, except that McCormack fired three shots at him. He said down, he says, thinking he was shot.

McCormack admitted that he put Foley and tried to throw him out of his saloon, and that he came back again, and when he opened the door to send them away they dragged him out and pounded him.

Foley persisted in stating that the shots had been fired directly at him. The revolver, which was taken from McCormack, was a six-shooter, of 34-calibre, and there were three empty shells in the cylinder. Both men were taken to the station-house, and McCormack was held in $1,000 bonds for a preliminary hearing. Foley was committed to the House of Detention for a preliminary hearing.

The following games are scheduled for today: At New York, Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, Louisville at Boston, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, Chicago at Baltimore.

ART MUSEUM TO BE FREE.

Park Board Arranges to Do Away with All Admission Fees.

The Park Board today took the necessary action to carry out the provisions of the new law authorizing the board to provide for the opening of the American Museum of Art free of charge to the public every day in the week except Monday, when it will be closed for cleaning the premises.

Hitherto an admission fee has been charged two days in the week. The board of estimate and apportionment has been asked to appropriate $50,000 for the maintenance of the museum, and the board has agreed to do so on the allowance is made the museum will be free at all times hereafter.

Lawyer John M. Rogers notified the board that he had been retained by several property-owners on Eighty-seventh street to oppose the opening of the museum on that street between Eighth and Columbus avenues as proposed by the Transvaal Land Company.

The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. The deck in the steerage had to be torn up to reach the flames. The berth deck in the steerage was nearly destroyed, as were also the officers' bunks and part of the fittings.

The damage will not necessitate the ship's return to New York.

THIS RAID SUCCEEDED.

Inmates of a Disorderly House Were Hidden Behind False Doors.

In Jefferson Market Court this morning Mame, Theo Andrea and a man arrested with her, who she said was her husband, were held in jail for examination on the charge of keeping a disorderly house at 40 West Fourth street.

This house had been several times unsuccessfully raided by Capt. McLaughlin's officers, who never could find the inmates, the latter vanishing as soon as the officers got inside the house.

A raid was made at 1 o'clock last night, and the inmates again disappeared, but the detectives found closets with false doors, in which several women were